Katie Stoner Biography:

Katie is a Camdenton graduate from the class of 2019. In her time in high school, Katie took part in many ensembles including the Marching band, symphonic band, concert band, and pep band. Katie was also active in MSHAA Solos and Ensembles all four years of high school. During her senior year, Katie acted as a teaching assistant to the full-time band staff at the middle school, where she assisted in teaching intro-level music courses.

Katie is now attending The University of Missouri, where she is a Natural Resource Science and Management major with an emphasis in fisheries and wildlife. Katie currently works as a Resource Science Assistant for The Missouri Department of Conservation where she works on a fish sampling crew on the Niangua River. Katie also spends many hours volunteering with the conservation department through fishing clinics, and outdoors skills camps to teach people young and old about Missouri's outdoor resources.

Katie is excited to be a part of the Camdenton band program once again and is proud to work alongside such an amazing group of staff members and students.
